National Economic & Social Benefits

The Transportation and Infrastructure Committee is at the leading edge of the Nations economic recovery and can provide a model for the states to make the most of infrastructure and transportation dollars to stimulate local economy by creating high paying jobs. Thanks in large part to its Chairman's innovative economic development initiatives that promise to improve the quality of life for all of its citizens, it is incumbent upon our government leaders to take a proactive stance by taking advantage of emerging resources that could allow more of our citizens to become gainfully employed. Encouraging dynamic approaches to risk management and workforce training such as the AASHTO OCIP, BOWD and WPA3 should help create high paying jobs, reduce welfare dependency and lower crime rates, leading to an overall improvement in quality of life for the citizens of America.
